NEW ORLEANS (WVUE) - The Catholic Diocese of Baton Rouge released Thursday the names of clergy who have credible allegations of sexual abuse of minors or vulnerable adults against them.

Bishop Michael Gerard Duca hopes releasing the list of names will be helpful to victims and help re-establish trust with the public.

"Some have asked why must we do this. As I said in my Sunday letter, the fact that this wound will not heal tells us that we must continue to bring everything into the light. This is not easy," he said.

An allegation of abuse is considered credible when a bishop believes, after a careful investigation, an incident occurred or probably occurred.

The Baton Rouge diocese includes 66 church parishes.

All seven Catholic dioceses in Louisiana have promised to release similar lists. So far, only New Orleans and Houma-Thibodaux have done so.

Here is a list of the individuals released by the Baton Rouge diocese. Some have New Orleans area ties:

[Part] 1. The individuals identified below have been the subject of credible allegations of sexual abuse of one or more minors or vulnerable adults which allegedly occurred within the Diocese of Baton Rouge after its formation in 1961. Also included is the name of a seminarian against whom a credible allegation was reported to the Diocese of Baton Rouge and which was included among the records that were reviewed.
