

Jeff Anderson & Associates and the Diocese of New Ulm Jointly Disclose Names of Priests Accused of Abuse

None of the men whose names are disclosed remain in ministry; disclosure is important part of child protection and safety

(St. Paul, MN) – Today, the law firm of Jeff Anderson & Associates and the Diocese of New Ulm jointly disclosed the names of 16 men who they have mutually identified as being credibly accused of sexual abuse of a minor while they were assigned as priests.

The disclosure of names is the result of discussions and sharing of information between the Diocese of New Ulm and Jeff Anderson & Associates that began several months ago. It is recognized that the disclosure of names is an important part of the healing process for many victims and survivors of abuse.

The names of the credibly accused men are listed below. Their assignment histories and additional information are posted on the websites of Jeff Anderson & Associates (www.andersonadvocates.com) and the Diocese of New Ulm (www.dnu.org). Of these 16 men, 13 are deceased and all but one has previously been named in media reports.

Four of the 16 men, J. Vincent Fitzgerald, Joseph (Louis) Heitzer, Rudolph Henrich and Harry Majerus, do not have credible accusations against them stemming from incidents reported to have occurred in the Diocese of New Ulm. However, the four men have been credibly accused of abuse in other dioceses and all four men worked at some point in what is now the Diocese of New Ulm.

“It is important that we recognize the credible accusations made against these men and acknowledge the terrible harm done by abuse in Church ministry,” said Bishop John LeVoir of the Diocese of New Ulm. “On behalf of the Church, I apologize for the grave offenses committed against the vulnerable by those who were ordained to serve our communities. We are grateful to the survivors who have come forward already and encourage those who have not yet come forward to do so.”

“The Diocese of New Ulm is demonstrating a willingness to be transparent about clergy who have abused children,” said Jeff Anderson. “This agreement to release information is an important step in transparency and child protection and safety. We will continue to work together to put this commitment into action, and we encourage other possible survivors to step forward.”

Anyone who has suffered sexual abuse by a priest or another person in Church ministry is encouraged to immediately report such misconduct to local law enforcement.

This disclosure information will also be published in the April edition of the diocesan newspaper, The Prairie Catholic.

The Diocese of New Ulm and Jeff Anderson & Associates will continue to work closely together to promote healing for victims and survivors.
