Dear Dr. Wagner:

Father Louis Miller came to see me on Friday after his return from a few days in Alabama. He and I continue to be most grateful for the work you are doing with him. We know it isn't going to be easy, but Lou has great determination.

A problem that haunts us is that of future assignment. Dr. Brush's evaluation report suggests that it may be very difficult for me to assign him. On the other hand, to be without an assignment is very painful for Father Miller: not only does he need to be working, but his friends and family will soon be aware that his situation has become doubtful. It may be too soon for you to give me any advice on this, but you should at least know that it is creating tension for Lou. On the other hand, if you can offer me any counsel, I would be most grateful.

With prayerful best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Archbishop of Louisville
