

Rev. Burke New Pastor At Holy Angels

Rev. Terry Burke has been named the new pastor of Holy Angels Catholic Church in Childress and St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church in Paducah.

Rev. Burke replaces Rev. Ron Krisman, who transferred to Christ The King Catholic Church in Lubbock.

A native of Waterford, Ireland, Rev. Burke was educated there, receiving his high school education at County Tipperary, Ireland.

After working in London, he entered the Seminary in Tipperary where he remained from 1962 to 1970.

He came to the United States in 1973, and first worked as a counselor at St. Mary's Catholic School in Amarillo.

He also was named Catholic Chaplin to the Amarillo Hospital District.

After later serving at the Catholic church in Spur, Tex., he returned to St. Marys as associate pastor, where he organized and managed an outreach program for nursing homes and other organizations in Amarillo.

After being transferred to Christ the King in Lubbock, where he remained 19 months, Rev. Burke was transferred to the Catholic parishes in Childress and Paducah.

"I am glad to be in Childress, and want the citizens to know that I will be happy to help in any type of outreach program in Childress," Rev. Burke said.
